Nearly 8,000 people in 10 countries participated in Philips’ global sleep survey, offering insights into how sleep differs around the world.

Worldwide, it’s estimated that 100 million people have OSA, but some 80% go undiagnosed.*

*http://www.stopbang.ca/osa.php

No matter where you fall on the sleep map, it’s important to understand your personal risk of developing a sleep disorder, including obstructive sleep apnea (OSA).

To take our online OSA risk assessment to see if you should schedule a consultation with your doctor, visit www.sleepapnea.com